

Healing Hearts After Trauma

S.A.F.F.E. is pleased to present three knowledgeable and entertaining experts on Healing Hearts After Trauma. The practical techniques you will learn during this 3-day conference will give you insight to begin the healing process for children. Whether you're a parent and need to develop therapeutic parenting skills, or a professional who works with children who are extremely difficult and resistant to improving behavior at home or school, then this workshop is for you!

Come hear Nancy Thomas, Deborah Hage, and Dr. Augusta Roth!

You will walk out with "how to" strategies that past registrants have said "changed my life!" The approaches that will be presented are especially effective on the child who exhibits some or all of these symptoms: Intensive control battles, manipulative, superficially charming, inappropriately affectionate with strangers, poor peer relationships, resists affection on parental terms, destructive to property, self and/or others, lack of conscience, was neglected, abused, or left during the first 3 years of life.

Mark your calendar for May 8-10, 2008.

Complete the registration form inside and mail it with your check by March 25 for discounted fees. Don't miss this exciting 3-day conference and a rare opportunity to see Nancy Thomas, Deborah Hage and Dr. Augusta Roth who only speak in Phoenix once every few years!

Speakers

Nancy Thomas, author of When Love Is Not Enough, is a professional speaker and a therapeutic parent who has successfully healed over 85% of the traumatized children in her care, 90% of whom had killed! Her work was highlighted in a 1990 HBO special entitled Child of Rage. Nancy is founder of SAVY, Stop America's Violent Youth, and a summer camp program for emotionally disturbed children.

Deborah Hage, MSW, author of Therapeutic Parenting, is a humanitarian and a child and family therapist specializing in traumatized children with multiple diagnoses. Deborah's experience as a parent, adoptive parent of 7, and foster parent of 6, was the experiential basis for her books and affords her a deeper understanding of families with high-risk children.

Augusta Roth, M.D., graduated from Yale School of Medicine Alpha Omega Alpha, and has over 20 years experience in varied medical fields including family practice and gynecology. She currently practices Psychiatry and Forensic Psychiatry and is highly effective in treating traumatized children with a special interest in RAD.
